BEST MAN SPEECH

Hi I'm insert your name. I can't tell you how honored I was that insert groom's name asked me to be his best man. Though I have to assume that everyone else said no. I hear that insert name of random friend who is not respected and there's no way he'd be asked refused to take the gig.

[Pause for laughter. There will be lots of it because you have carefully selected a dullard who's so pathetic that nobody minds laughing in his face because that's the dynamic of your social group.]

"I first met groom when I was just starting out at insert name of college/job. He was a real ball buster/wet blanket/loose cannon. Come on, we love him, but we know it's true.

[Let that soak in. Everyone knows it is in fact true, but when it comes down to it, he's the best goddamn guy you know. And that's what we're here to celebrate.]

Now name of bride, you may want to cover your ears for this one. There was this one time where insert affectionate/mildly anti-semitic nickname and I were so drunk/stoned/jacked up on glass that we slept with hookers/killed a couple hookers/became hookers. I bet name of new wife hasn't heard that story! Just kidding! She was the hooker/dead hooker/john!

[Pause for laughter. Your friend's wife is a good sport and will laugh off this story from her new husband's past because we were all young once, right? Hell, it's not like you didn't call the authorities after murdering hookers only to blame it on the loser friend you mentioned earlier, tying him up in litigation for years. Also your inclusion of her into the story will remind the party that you are very close with the couple, which gives you the green light to say such things.]