Statement on Speaker Quinn's "Stronger Schools for NYC" Speech

New York, NY – Following Speaker Quinn's speech at the New School Tuesday morning, in which she laid out her vision for creating stronger New York City's schools, the Campaign for Children released the following statement:

"We applaud Speaker Quinn for recognizing that what New York City's children need for success does not just take place within school hours — they need educational, enriching after-school and early education programs. As the Speaker notes, the economic and social benefits of investing in these programs, particularly for low-income children, are well known. We look forward to working with the Speaker and other City leaders to ensure that New York City makes long-term investments in supporting and expanding both after-school and early education."
