

“My favorite accomplishment of my entire life is that everything has changed except for me and Britany. She was my partner in crime at brownies sleepaway camp and my date to the Grammys. Little did either of us know that Prince Charming for Britany would be the kid that sat next to me in class with a bowl cut and Lego lunchbox. He would chase her and peruse her through middle school and junior high and high school, and their paths would diverge and then come back together. It would be so magically unpredictable and at the same time so incredibly fated, just like the best love stories are. Tonight we've got mothers crying, we've got fathers that are filled with pride, and I like all of the rest of your friends are overjoyed for you because we know that the best parts of your love story are yet to come. Congratulations.”