

A speech is like a woman's skirt: it needs to be long enough to cover the subject matter but short enough to hold the audience's attention.

(Anonymous)