

Junior Class President Speech

Students, faculty, and the population of Brooklyn Tech; I stand before you as Pakawat Pamornsut. A candidate for what is known as Junior Class President. But I am better known as Pak, and first off, I would like to start off by saying thank you to the student body for giving me this opportunity. Since freshman year, I have been a passionate advocate for our students, our community. Starting from the bottom as a freshman student council's treasurer, I budget and manage the school's finance. Although this was no easy task at a glance, I persevere and completed the job, because I had one chance and I wasn't going to give up without an attempt, an advance. The following year, I was once again elected as sophomore class and once again I rose to the occasion. For my student body, that's right, the Asian, Caucasian, Africans.

As junior year approach, the rising juniors will be face with the difficult transition to majors. Yet I'm willing to wager my position that we will strive through the opposition and make it through in times of sleep deprivation. Because as Pak as your junior class president, I'll waver all your discontents. And when you're in torment, you can come to Pak, because he'll always have your back. And whenever you're feeling down and just want to cry, just remember that you have Pak by your side. I promise as president to reduce the amount of stress for our year, and make sure you don't shed a tear. I guarantee I'm sincere, and no matter the hardship we'll face, I know WE will persevere.

If elected, I will continue to fight for equality for our student body. I exemplifies passionate, self-driven advocacy on behalf of all of us. I am the epitome of trust. I care about your interests and your voice. Come and together I want make you guys realize, that coming to Tech isn't such a bad choice.
