The report card provides an objective, qualitative evaluation of your business' performance versus similar reporting companies in the industry on the basis of various key performance measures. In particular, your company is compared to other reporting companies to determine whether you performed: Strong, Good, Fair or Weak. These four performance categories relate to the four possible quartile ranges which a reporting company may fall in for any given measure. While this evaluation does not consider any "special circumstances" that may exist for your company which result in the appearance strong or weak performance, it is designed to direct your attention to potential improvement opportunities. can compare your own data versus five peer groups of your choosing. Simply select the peer group you wish to compare yourself against from the dropdown menus and then click "Build Report." Created reports can be exported to Excel once they have been built.

You may select which data grouping you would like to be "graded" against by selecting from the dropdown below. A "*" indicated that data was not provided for that metric.
