Manish Goyal,

A/6, Runwal Estate,

Thane (W).

6th July, 2021.

To,

The Police Commissioner,

Railway Protection Force,

Thane (W).

Subject: Complaint against mobile thefts.

Sir,

I am a resident of Thane and a regular commuter in the local trains running on the Central line. I wish to bring to your notice the increasing menace of mobile thefts in the local trains.

Few days ago, my mobile was stolen from my handbag while I was travelling from Thane to Kurla. I very well remember having attended my last call near Bhandup and then keeping it back in my bag. When I got down at Kurla station and searched for my mobile to make call, I was shocked to see that it was not there. I frantically searched for it but it was not there. It was then that I realized that while getting down from the train some people pressed against me unnecessarily. I somehow got down.

When I recalled the incident, I felt that there is a gang which is actively involved in these types of mobile thefts. I was told by people around me that they have had similar experiences. It is my earnest request to you to look into the matter and take immediate action.

Thanking you,

Yours truly,

Manish Goyal

7th July, 2021.

Dear Ameet,

It was a great news to know that you have topped your class once again. Congratulations! Let me share with you my experience of the new fitness and exercise regime that I have included in my routine. Indulging only in studies is not enough.

I was very lazy and was put off by the thought of getting up early and going for an hour of brisk walk, but Dad played a key role in motivating me. After initial phases of sulking and grumbling, I started enjoying it. I experienced severe body ache for the first few days due to lack of exercise but now my stamina is improving. My appetite has improved, too. Most importantly, my concentration in studies has enhanced due to a new save of energy and vigour felt throughout the day. I feel very active now and can have a heavy breakfast the most important meal of the day. Exercise helps us to feel very positive and drives away our depression and laziness.

You must force yourself to inculcate this habit of vigorous exercise at least for 30 minutes each day and experience the difference. Do write soon. Bye.

Expansion of the proverb/Slogan

Nature is the best teacher/ Look, listen, learn from nature

Emerson has rightly said: “The sky, the mountain, the tree, the animal, give us a delight in and for themselves.” There is so much to learn from the delight we experience in nature. Its peaceful demeanor after natural calamities tells us to stay calm. Things happen. But we should be in control, it demonstrates. The gurgling streams teach us perseverance as its twists and turns through obstacles to reach their goal, the sea. The mango tree which always gives unconditionally, teaches us to return with gladness good for the evil done. How? Doesn’t it offer you a beautiful, colorful, luscious fruit each time you throw a stone at it?

There are lessons on the beauty and significance of silence, in nature. Everything green and colorful around us, the trees, the flowers, and the grass in different hues come alive, add value to the existence in silence. The stars twinkle in quietness. The sun and the moon move in quietude. Like each one of us long for love so do the elements of nature. A little love and care help a flower to blossom in all its loveliness silently imparting the power of love. Nature never competes, is always content, is never aspirational but it does not stop doing and giving its best. It is simple yet beautiful, strong yet vulnerable. So, wait take a deep breath, relax and adapt to the pace of nature.... slow and steady. Look listen and take in the beauty around you as you enjoy the freedom from the mundane, the ordinary. Inevitable events occur and nature whispers: ‘This too shall pass.’ Let us look, listen and learn from nature. Nature is indeed the best teacher.

Expansion of a quotation:

“Ask not what your country can do for you – ask what you can do for your country,”

John F. Kennedy

Patriotism is an important virtue each of us must possess. What is patriotism? Simply put patriotism is love for one's country. Do we have unconditional love and attachment and gratitude towards our motherland? Do we experience a sense of national pride? Above all are we willing to make the highest sacrifice for our motherland, our country? If answers to all the above questions are in affirmative, then we are indeed a patriot. Patriotism is not only about displaying the above traits but also about putting national interest above all else. To abide by the Constitution and respect its ideals and institutions is patriotism.

Respecting the National Flag and the National Anthem, to cherish and follow the noble ideals which inspired our national struggle for freedom too are acts of patriotism. To uphold and protect the sovereignty, unity and integrity of India and following other fundamental duties enshrined in our Constitution are all ways in which one can put the value of patriotism into practice. Swami Vivekananda has rightly said: “Practical patriotism means not a mere sentiment or even emotion of love of the motherland but a passion to serve our fellow-countrymen.” He further added: “Feeling alone will not do; feeling has to be followed by thinking and doing.”

Figures of speech:

Figures of speech are sentences that convey meaning beyond the literal meaning of the words used. The figurative use of language is seen here. Adding a touch of creativity and freshness to the ideas conveyed figures of speech create a better poetic effect.

Let us revise three figures of speech:

Personification

Personification is a figure of speech in which inanimate objects and abstract ideas are spoken as though having the qualities of a human being in other words Personification speaks of ideas or things as if they are humans.

e.g., Pride rides on horseback only to tumble and fall.

The figure of Speech used in the above lines is Personification, as pride an abstract notion is given human qualities for a better poetic effect.

Other examples:

1. The earth in all its bounty smiled gloriously.
2. Dancing across the sky the lightening created a pretty picture.
3. Howling into the night, the wind announced its presence.
4. Smiling at the twinkling stars the moon moved on.

Hyperbole

Hyperbole is a greatly exaggerated statement used to make impactful statements. We are not expected to take the literal meaning of these sentences frame to create a better effect.

e.g., Alice wept filling a dry river to its brim with her tears.

The figure of speech used in the above line is Hyperbole, as the sentence is highly exaggerated for a better poetic effect.

Other examples:

1. Losing tons of money, he lost his all.
2. *Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretched in a never-ending line Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand I saw at a glance, Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.*

4) Apostrophe:

Apostrophe is a figure of speech in which sentences address some inanimate thing or some abstract idea assuming it to be a living person. It is also used to address some absent person assuming as if he were present.

e.g., Blue Moon! How you add beauty to this dark night.

The figure of Speech used in the above lines is Apostrophe, as 'Blue Moon', an inanimate object is addressed as if it were a living person for a better poetic effect.

2. Time dear friend why don't you wait a while?
3. O Fortune! Yes, you only favour the brave.
4. O Gandhiji! Don't we cherish the values and ideals you armed us with as we move onward and upward.

Idioms and Phrases:

An idiom is a group of words which conveys meaning which is totally different from its literal meaning.

In other words, reading the composite word present in the idiom will not help us to zero down on its meaning.

E.g.: Stop beating around the bush and tell me exactly what happened.

The literal meaning of the words underlined above should not be taken as it is an idiom.

To beat around the bush means not coming straight to the point.

Some idioms and their meaning:

Adding a touch of creativity and freshness to the ideas conveyed figures of speech create a better poetic effect. It is a departure from the ordinary style of writing.

Let us revise some figures of speech:

Euphemism, Antithesis, Irony and Pun

Euphemism

Euphemism is a figure of speech wherein we speak in pleasing or favourable terms of an unpleasant or bad thing. We use agreeable or inoffensive expressions for the same.

3. He was differently abled and so he took time to complete the task.

Antithesis

Antithesis is a figure of speech wherein opposite ideas are used in the same sentences for a better poetic effect.

A striking opposition of contrast words or feelings is made in the same sentence usually to emphasise on the point made.

e.g., A good man is kinder even to his enemy than bad men are towards their friends.

The figure of speech used in the above line is Antithesis as two opposite ideas are used in the same sentence for better poetic effect.

Other examples:

1. United we stand, divided we fall.

Irony is the use of words, the literal meaning conveyed in the sentence is just the opposite of what is intended to be expressed. In this figure of speech, we may say one thing, but mean just the opposite.

e.g., An exceptionally fine friend you are to forsake me in my trouble.

The figure of speech used in the above line is Irony because the literal meaning of the statement conveys the opposite of what is intended to be expressed, for a better impact.

Other examples:

1. A gentleman you are to deceive those who trust you.
2. You displayed your brilliance each time you failed.
3. It was so nice of you to hurt me when all I needed was a little help.
4. Thank you for the disrespect and the lessons imparted.

Pun

A Pun is a play upon words.

e.g., The quality of one's life depends on the liver.

The figure of speech used in the above line is Pun, as there is a play upon the word 'liver'. It could stand for the person who is leading the life or the internal organ of our body for a better poetic effect.

Other examples:

1. He lies in a foreign land helping his own.
2. Bumpy ride ahead for motor car manufacturers.
3. Scared of being beaten he ran fast.

- A man found a cocoon. One day a small opening appeared; he sat and watched the butterfly for several hours as it struggled to force its body through the little hole. Then it seemed to stop making any progress. It appeared as if it had gotten as far as it could and could not go on farther, so the man decided to help the butterfly.
- He took a pair of scissors and stripped the remaining bit of the cocoon. The butterfly could now emerge from the cocoon easily. But something was odd. The butterfly had a swollen body and shrivelled wings. He continued to watch the butterfly because he expected that at any moment the wings would contract in time. neither happened. In fact, the butterfly spent the rest of the life crawling around with a swollen body and deformed wings. It was never able to fly.

Today I am going to share with some of my life lessons. I learned these lessons in the context of my early career struggles, a life lived under the influence of sometimes unplanned events which were the crucibles that tempered my character and reshaped my future.

This first event occurred when I was graduate student in control theory at the Indian institute of technology IIT Kanpur. At breakfast, on a bright Sunday morning in 1968, I met a famous computer scientist who was on sabbatical from a well-known US university. He was discussing exciting new developments in the field of computer science with a large number of students, explaining how such developments would alter our future. He was articulate, passionate and quite convincing I was hooked. I went straight from breakfast to the library, read four or five papers he had suggested and left the library determined to study computer science.

When I look back at that pivotal meeting, I marvel at how one role model can alter the future of a young student for the better. This experience taught me that valuable advice can sometimes open new doors.

N. R. Narayan Murthy, 'From A better India A better world'

When you think of the most dangerous pests, the housefly probably isn't one of the first that comes to mind. Instead, you probably think of a pest that stings, like a wasp or bee. It is true that flies rarely bite or sting, but their danger lies in the fact that they often land on dead animals, rotten food, manure and trash. Because they frequent those places, they pick up and spread diseases that are harmful to humans.

You get typhoid fever when you eat and drink salmonella typhi bacteria in contaminated food. Cholera is an intestinal infection, and you get it when you ingest bacteria called vibrio cholera. Dysentery is a one of the more common diseases you might catch from the bacteria spread by housefly. It gets worse-houseflies can also carry and spread leprosy and anthrax. They even transmit the eggs of parasitic worms.

Fortunately, there are several methods you can use to keep houseflies away. So, you and your loved ones can avoid catching any of the diseases transmitted by the tiny pests. A yard full of animal waste, grass clippings and other debris will keep you from getting rid of your housefly problem. So, take the time to keep your yards clean. You should cut the lawns. Files have to hang out around rotting food, so make sure all trash cans are sealed tightly. Make sure all of your food is covered, and if you have fresh produce, keep it in a bag or sealed container. Also, avoid leaving dirty dishes in your sink. The scent of food leftovers could easily attract houseflies.

Solved activity:Read the given informative passage and summarize it. Give suitable title to it.

Rich people of the 19th century- as shown in cinema – spent their evenings in lounges and salons, dancing leisurely, blowing smoke rings, discussing arcane philosophical topics, or romancing well-dressed demure ladies. To be rich was to have leisure time. Others did their running around. Today, the rich man is the one with no time at all. Always hard-pressed and pre-occupied. Not only do they have their hands full, they make quite a show of it. Why? How did 'busyness' become the ultimate status-symbol of our times?

Unlike our agricultural and industrial ancestors who prided themselves on the luxury goods they owned and how little they worked, today the ultimate apparitional objects are the workers themselves, who, by bragging at, the rich man has no time about how busy they are, can signal just how much the labour market values them and their skills.

How much value people place on 'busyness' also varies with culture? Americans, who do not even have the right to take paid holidays, place a premium on workaholism, while countries like Spain, Italy, Greece and France, which are laid back despite being developed, value leisure more.

Summarizing:

'The concept of being 'Rich''

In the 19th century, to be rich was to have leisure time, while others did the running around. Today, the rich man has no time at all. And this 'busyness' has become a status symbol. In the past, people were proud of their luxury goods, and of how little they worked. Today, the rich boast about how busy they are, and how much the labour market values them and their skills. Of course, how much a person values his leisure also varies from culture to culture.

"Get lost, you ugly fellow!" he would be cursed by one and all. "Hide your face before you kill someone with your evil eye!" The emperor soon heard of this man's reputation and wanted to see him. The poor fellow who had not harmed a single person in his life was brought to Akbar. Akbar took a look at him and asked him to be brought back in the evening. That particular day was emperor especially full and tiring day for the Emperor and his courtiers. So many matters had to be attended to, that Akbar even forgot to eat. By the end of the day, Emperor was exhausted. To make matters worse, Akbar was informed that his favourite child, little prince Salim, had fallen ill.

Then the Emperor suddenly remembered that he had seen the face of the 'unlucky' man that morning. That was it. It was that man's entire fault. Akbar decided, he called his courtiers and told them that he was going to have that 'unlucky' man executed. All of them agreed except Birbal. Instead, Birbal let out a short laugh, "What's the matter Birbal?" asked the emperor, "You seem to find something funny!" "Nothing, your Majesty", replied Birbal. "You say this man brings bad luck because you had to go without food ever since you saw him this morning. Look at his luck, yours was the first face he saw today and he has to die because of it." Akbar immediately realized his folly and rewarded Birbal for his wisdom.

Questions:

The wise man smiled and said: “You can’t laugh at the same joke over and over.
