CRAFTING YOUR PRACTICUM RESUME

What is the Purpose of a Resume?

A resume is often an organization's first impression of you. It should be used as a marketing tool to tell your story by presenting your skills, knowledge, and experience to a potential employer/practicum placement in a concise, easy-to-read way. The average employer spends only 15 to 20 seconds reviewing a resume. Your resume should be targeted at a specific organization/position, error-free and easy for a hiring manager to quickly skim and get an idea of your qualifications for a position.

There is not one perfect layout for your resume, but your practicum resume should be:

- Organized logically
- Easy to understand
- Consistent (spacing, formatting, font, use of bold/italics, etc.)
- One page limit

Avoid:

- Pronouns: Personal or possessive pronouns (I, my, me, we, our) are not necessary
- Typos and spelling mistakes: Spellcheck does not always catch typos. Have at least 2 other people proofread your resume.
- Premade templates: these can be rigid and difficult to alter to your specific needs.
- Excessive graphic design: (unusual fonts, color, bullet points, text boxes, etc)

What should you include in your Practicum Resume?

For your practicum resume there is a more rigid format you must follow to qualify for placement use the chart below and sample on the next page to craft your resume.

What is the Purpose of a Cover Letter?

Always include a cover letter with your application if you are able. It allows you to personalize your application, demonstrate how you are a great match for the position, lets you show your personality and passions, and serves as a writing sample. This can be a powerful tool especially when you are in an applicant pool of candidates with very similar qualifications and experiences. Use your cover letter to show them what you bring to the table and why you are a perfect match for what they are looking for!

Tips

Customize your Letter: Don't just send a generic letter with all your applications where you change the name of the company and position only. Employers can spot a form letter a mile away. This sends the message that you do not really care about the position.

Contact Information: Include the name, correct spelling, and job title of the person to whom you are writing. If it is not stated in the position or you are unable to identify the receiver, address the letter to "Hiring Manager."

Do Your Research: Know something about the company's products, services, mission, or values and reference this in your letter.

Keep Your Audience in Mind: Focus on what YOU can do for the EMPLOYER, not what you will get out of the experience. Describe how your skills and experience make you a great candidate for this position.

Use Specific Examples: Don't just state that you have experience, back it up with evidence! Don't just repeat what you have on your resume, but rather elaborate on two or three key skills/experiences and describe how they directly relate to the position you are applying to.

Align with the Job Description: Read the job description carefully. What is the employer looking for? Are they seeking someone with resilience? Someone who can work in a fast-paced environment? Provide an example of a time when you developed and demonstrated those traits.

Write Well and Proofread: Employers scrutinize the letter for proper grammar, spelling, style, and coherence of thought. If your cover letter is sloppy, they will assume this is a sample of how you work.

Do not overthink this! It's easy to get really in your head about professional language and trying to sound fancy that you use words that are not reflective of who you really are. You want to be professional and polished, but not sound like a robot.

Be brief! Cover letters should be limited to one page, 3-4 paragraphs at most.

Contact Name
Title and/or Department Organization
Name Street Address City, State Zip Code

Dear Mr. _____, Ms. _____, or Hiring Manager,

Opening Paragraph

In your first paragraph, attract the reader's attention. State your reasons for writing, indicating the position or type of work for which you are applying. State why you are interested in the position/employer/the field. Focus on something that sets this organization apart from similar employers and why that appeals to you. State why you are qualified for the role, i.e., what you can do for them.

Second Paragraph

Explain your background for the employer. Elaborate on which of your experiences have prepared you to meet the specific requirements of the position. Don't just tell them about your skills: show them with specific examples. This could include how your academic background makes you a qualified candidate, clinical rotations, work or volunteer experience. Do not reiterate all the information that is on your resume, but rather focus on a few key points that highlight how your skills/experience match up with what the employer is looking for.

Closing Paragraph

Indicate your desire for a meeting or interview and how they can contact you to follow up. Include your contact information (email and phone number). Thank the reader for their consideration and reiterate your enthusiasm for the position/company

Sincerely,

Your Name

PROFESSIONAL RESUME FOR RN POSITIONS

How is this different than your Practicum Resume?

Your professional resume is different from your practicum resume. In your professional resume you will add more in depth information about your skills and experience, including a more in depth description of your practicum experience and past jobs/volunteering especially if it is health related. Remember, all new RN grads will have completed similar clinical rotations. You should be highlighting what makes you different, where you personally excel in knowledge/skills/experience. Keep your audience in mind, what do you want your potential employer to learn about you from this document? Now is your opportunity to let them know the amazing skills you would bring to the position.

Describe your experiences

Provide detail on each of your experiences that are related to the position you are applying to. This can include positions that have “transferable skills” like working as an RA and highlighting your leadership and communication skills or crisis management. Under each experience you should have bullet pointed “skills phrases” that:

1. Starts with an action verb
2. Highlights what you did and how you did it
3. Demonstrates the result and skill used

Example:

Action verb skill used what and how

Demonstrated attention to detail to initiate interventions such as intravenous, subcutaneous and intramuscular injections.

What should you include in your Professional Resume?

Essential	Optional
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Name and Contact Information: First and Last name, address, email, phone • Education: Degree(s), GPA, significant awards, graduation date • Licensure and Certifications: If you have passed the NCLEX, include RN license and number. If you have not yet taken the NCLEX write “Eligible for NCLEX test for RN” and test date if known. Any other relevant certifications. • Clinical Practicum • Related Job Experience: CNA positions, PCA jobs, etc. • Relevant Research: Ex. honors research thesis/ presentation 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Professional Summary/Objective: most recruiters now prefer a professional summary to an objective. A professional summary is great for those with more experience (example: LPN to RN program). • Academic & Co-curricular Activities • Awards • Skills: particularly language skills • Volunteer Experience: include especially if relevant • Unrelated Job Experience: Depending on how much nursing/clinical experience you have you may want to add unrelated job experience to show transferable skills
