

Write Complete Sentences

Remember: You need a subject and a predicate to make a complete sentence. Often, the most important word in the subject is a noun. Every predicate needs a verb.

Let's circle the most important word in each subject.
Let's underline each verb.

Subject	Predicate
Our community	depends on volunteers.
Some people	have more than others.
Kids from the high school	clean the park on weekends.
The volunteers	are a big help.

Try It

A. Add a subject, a verb, or a predicate. Say the complete sentence.

1. Volunteers _____ many kinds of choices.
2. Sometimes a choice _____.
3. _____ chooses to give up her Saturdays.
4. She _____.
5. _____ helps people. They _____ respect for her.

B. Edit the paragraph. Fix five mistakes. The first is done for you.

A neighbor once broke a promise to you. Now the neighbor ^{needs} your help. You to help the neighbor anyway. Remembers your good deed. Do your choices make a difference? Influence others. Next time, that person a better choice. He helps someone else.
