

Go the extra mile

Idiom in Sentence

Examples

- Mary decided to go the extra mile and bake cookies for the entire office, not just her team.
- Even though it was already late, the dedicated teacher went the extra mile to help her struggling students understand the concept.
- In the championship game, Sarah went the extra mile by practicing her free throws until midnight.
- The customer service representative went the extra mile to resolve my issues, ensuring I'd remain a loyal customer.
- Tim always goes the extra mile to make his presentations engaging, adding visuals and interactive elements.
- When planning the surprise party, she went the extra mile and contacted all of his long-lost friends.
- The chef went the extra mile to accommodate the dietary restrictions of every guest at the event.
- Although the project was complete, Robert went the extra mile to double-check every calculation.
- As a manager, Lisa goes the extra mile to ensure her team feels appreciated, often writing personal notes of gratitude.
- The hospital staff went the extra mile during the holidays, decorating the wards to uplift the spirits of the patients.

- Steve went the extra mile to find the rare book his wife had always wanted, just to see her smile.
- The architect went the extra mile by visiting the construction site daily, ensuring everything was up to standard.
- By offering free consultations, the attorney is going the extra mile to help potential clients.
- Nina went the extra mile in preparing for the interview, conducting in-depth research on the company's history and values.
- The artist went the extra mile, adding incredible details to make the mural come alive.
- Despite having a full workload, Carla went the extra mile to volunteer at the local food bank.
- The coach went the extra mile to train the team, often staying late to give additional instruction.
- During the crisis, the NGO went the extra mile to provide food and shelter for the displaced families.
- To win back his ex, Mike went the extra mile, taking lessons to learn her favorite dance.
- The software developer went the extra mile to ensure the new app was user-friendly, soliciting feedback and making improvements.