

Jump on the bandwagon Idiom in Sentence Examples

- When veganism became a trend, Sarah was quick to jump on the bandwagon and gave up eating meat.
- Ever since the company posted record profits, employees are jumping on the bandwagon to buy its stock.
- Not one to jump on the bandwagon, Emily critically evaluated the claims made by the latest diet fad before trying it.
- After seeing his neighbor's new electric car, Bob decided to jump on the bandwagon and get one for himself.
- As soon as the new technology was endorsed by industry leaders, smaller companies started jumping on the bandwagon.
- When the local sports team started winning, more people began to jump on the bandwagon and attend games.
- After realizing the popularity of yoga for mental well-being, Mark decided it was time to jump on the bandwagon.
- Social media influencers are always quick to jump on the bandwagon of any viral challenge.
- Businesses are jumping on the bandwagon of using green, eco-friendly materials to appeal to conscious consumers.

- Just because everyone is jumping on the bandwagon of a new investment opportunity doesn't mean it's a good idea.
- Once the actor publicly endorsed the brand, many of his fans jumped on the bandwagon and purchased its products.
- With the rising popularity of remote work, many employees are eager to jump on the bandwagon and ditch the office.
- After the local bakery introduced gluten-free options, other shops in the area jumped on the bandwagon.
- Seeing the success of subscription-based services, even traditional businesses are jumping on the bandwagon.
- When fitness trackers became a craze, it seemed like everyone jumped on the bandwagon, from teenagers to the elderly.
- The country singer jumped on the bandwagon of incorporating electronic elements into his songs to reach a broader audience.
- With the surge of online learning platforms during the pandemic, many educators decided to jump on the bandwagon and create their courses.
- As zero-waste lifestyles gain traction, supermarkets are jumping on the bandwagon by offering plastic-free packaging options.
- As soon as Maria saw her friends investing in cryptocurrency, she felt the urge to jump on the bandwagon.
- Local restaurants jumped on the bandwagon of offering online delivery services to keep up with the changing times.