

Once in a blue moon Idiom in Sentence Examples

- Once in a blue moon, you'll find a deal this good, so don't miss out.
- He cleans his room once in a blue moon; it's almost always a mess.
- She visits her hometown once in a blue moon; she's usually too busy with work.
- We have dinner together once in a blue moon, but when we do, it's always special.
- The team wins a championship once in a blue moon; their last victory was a decade ago.
- Once in a blue moon, we'll see a shooting star from our backyard.
- I skip my morning run once in a blue moon, usually only if I'm feeling unwell.
- The train is on time once in a blue moon; otherwise, expect delays.
- He gets angry once in a blue moon; he's generally very calm and composed.
- They offer that specialized course once in a blue moon, so you should enroll while you can.
- The company gives out bonuses once in a blue moon; most of the rewards are non-monetary.
- Once in a blue moon, you'll encounter an opportunity that could change your life.
- She wears a dress once in a blue moon; she prefers pants and skirts.

- We make that exotic dish once in a blue moon; the ingredients are hard to find.
- She calls her extended family once in a blue moon, mostly on special occasions.
- I go to the theater once in a blue moon; streaming services are just too convenient.
- Once in a blue moon, he'll write a poem, but he mostly focuses on prose.
- We'll get a snow day once in a blue moon; it rarely snows here.
- The teacher gives pop quizzes once in a blue moon, so always be prepared.
- I'll indulge in a luxurious spa day once in a blue moon; it's a rare but necessary treat.