

The Whole Nine Yards Idiom in Sentence Examples

- She didn't just prepare a presentation; she gave us the whole nine yards, complete with handouts and interactive slides.
- When it comes to gardening, my grandfather goes the whole nine yards, from planting seeds to harvesting fruits.
- I asked him for a summary, but he told me the whole nine yards, from the project's inception to its completion.
- The film festival had the whole nine yards: red carpet, celebrity appearances, and even a fireworks display.
- He didn't just make dinner; he went the whole nine yards with a three-course meal and wine pairings.
- I thought they would just touch up the paint, but they went the whole nine yards and remodeled the entire room.
- During her recital, Lisa gave it the whole nine yards, including an encore performance.
- You can't just propose a solution; you need to give the whole nine yards on how it will be implemented.
- The team went the whole nine yards this season, winning every single match.
- I told her she could borrow a dress, but she went the whole nine yards and bought a new one.

- The podcast covered the whole nine yards of the subject, leaving no stone unturned.
- He's not satisfied with doing a mediocre job; he always goes the whole nine yards.
- I was just expecting a basic website, but the designer offered the whole nine yards, including SEO optimization.
- Don't just bring snacks to the picnic; let's go the whole nine yards and have a full-on barbecue.
- They didn't just go on a vacation; they went the whole nine yards with a two-week European tour.
- The director went the whole nine yards with realistic props, detailed sets, and authentic costumes.
- They didn't just offer us coffee; they went the whole nine yards and served a full breakfast.
- The conference offered the whole nine yards: lectures, workshops, and even one-on-one mentorship sessions.
- I thought we would just get a tour of the facility, but we got the whole nine yards, including a Q&A with the CEO.
- It wasn't just a wedding; it was the whole nine yards, complete with a horse-drawn carriage and a live orchestra.