

100 Archetype Examples

- Harry Potter in the Harry Potter series, who defeats Voldemort to bring peace to the wizarding world.
- Frodo Baggins in The Lord of the Rings, who carries the burden of the One Ring to save Middle-earth.
- Simba in The Lion King, who overcomes his fears to reclaim his kingdom.
- Luke Skywalker in Star Wars, who battles the Dark Side and fulfills his destiny as a Jedi.
- Wonder Woman in Wonder Woman, fighting for justice and peace.
- Gandalf in The Lord of the Rings, guiding the fellowship on their quest.
- Dumbledore in Harry Potter, providing wisdom and protection to the students.
- Yoda in Star Wars, teaching the ways of the Force.
- Morpheus in The Matrix, who awakens Neo to the truth about reality.
- Mister Miyagi in The Karate Kid, training Daniel to defend himself.
- Darth Vader in Star Wars, embodying power and darkness.
- Voldemort in Harry Potter, representing the ultimate evil and fear of death.
- The Joker in Batman, a chaotic and unpredictable force.
- Sauron in The Lord of the Rings, a powerful and malevolent being seeking dominion.
- Scar in The Lion King, whose ambition leads to betrayal.
- Scout Finch in To Kill a Mockingbird, seeing the world with innocence and honesty.
- Pip in Great Expectations, whose naivety is tested by life's experiences.
- Forrest Gump in Forrest Gump, living life with a simple heart.

- Liesel Meminger in The Book Thief, whose childhood is marked by the harsh realities of war.
- Tiny Tim in A Christmas Carol, embodying hope and purity.
- Indiana Jones in Indiana Jones, always seeking adventure and historical treasures.
- Moana in Moana, venturing across the ocean to save her people.
- Lara Croft in Tomb Raider, an archaeologist exploring ancient mysteries.
- Odysseus in The Odyssey, journeying home through countless challenges.
- Bilbo Baggins in The Hobbit, leaving his comfort zone to find adventure.
- Marmee in Little Women, always nurturing and caring for her daughters.
- Samwise Gamgee in The Lord of the Rings, devoted to helping Frodo.
- Mrs. Weasley in Harry Potter, protecting and loving her family.
- The Fairy Godmother in Cinderella, ensuring Cinderella's happiness.
- Martha in The Secret Garden, caring for the young protagonists.
- Mufasa in The Lion King, ruling with strength and wisdom.
- President Snow in The Hunger Games, ruling with an iron fist and manipulation.
- King Arthur in Arthurian legends, a just and noble leader.
- Tywin Lannister in Game of Thrones, a ruthless and strategic ruler.
- Denethor in The Lord of the Rings, a flawed ruler whose despair affects his judgment.
- Katniss Everdeen in The Hunger Games, defying an oppressive regime.
- Robin Hood in Robin Hood, stealing from the rich to give to the poor.
- V in V for Vendetta, fighting against a totalitarian government.

- Tris Prior in Divergent, challenging societal norms.
- Jack Sparrow in Pirates of the Caribbean, a pirate living by his own rules.
- Romeo and Juliet in Romeo and Juliet, whose love is passionate and tragic.
- Elizabeth Bennet in Pride and Prejudice, whose love story involves overcoming pride and misunderstanding.
- Jack and Rose in Titanic, a love that transcends social boundaries.
- Noah and Allie in The Notebook, representing enduring love.
- Tristan in Legends of the Fall, torn by love and fate.
- Bilbo Baggins in The Hobbit, a simple hobbit thrust into adventure.
- Arthur Dent in The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy, an ordinary man in extraordinary circumstances.
- Jim Halpert in The Office, an average person navigating work and love.
- George Bailey in It's a Wonderful Life, an everyman whose choices affect his entire town.
- Willy Loman in Death of a Salesman, representing the struggles of the common man.
- Hester Prynne in The Scarlet Letter, ostracized for her actions.
- Frankenstein's Monster in Frankenstein, rejected by society for his appearance.
- Jay Gatsby in The Great Gatsby, never fully accepted by the world he longs for.
- Shrek in Shrek, an ogre shunned by society but finding his place.
- Edward Scissorhands in Edward Scissorhands, different and misunderstood.
- Dumbledore in Harry Potter, a wise figure offering guidance.
- Aslan in The Chronicles of Narnia, a source of wisdom and spiritual guidance.
- Professor X in X-Men, a mentor and guide to the mutants.
- The Oracle in The Matrix, offering cryptic yet profound insights.

- Master Oogway in Kung Fu Panda, sharing wisdom about destiny and balance.
- Circe in The Odyssey, enchanting and dangerous.
- Lady Macbeth in Macbeth, manipulating Macbeth to pursue power.
- Catherine Earnshaw in Wuthering Heights, whose beauty and desires lead to tragedy.
- The Sirens in Greek mythology, luring sailors to their doom.
- Morgana in Arthurian legend, using her allure and magic.
- Victor Frankenstein in Frankenstein, creating life with dire consequences.
- Geppetto in Pinocchio, a toymaker who gives life to a wooden puppet.
- Tony Stark in Iron Man, using his genius to create and innovate.
- Charles Xavier in X-Men, creating a school for young mutants.
- Daedalus in Greek mythology, the inventor of the labyrinth.
- Loki in Norse mythology and Marvel Universe, causing chaos with his tricks.
- Bugs Bunny in Looney Tunes, always outsmarting his adversaries.
- Puck in A Midsummer Night's Dream, creating mischief and confusion.
- The Cheshire Cat in Alice in Wonderland, giving cryptic advice.
- Jack in Jack and the Beanstalk, tricking the giant.
- Achilles in Greek mythology, the epitome of a fearless warrior.
- Jon Snow in Game of Thrones, fighting for honor and justice.
- Beowulf in Beowulf, slaying monsters to protect his people.
- Aragorn in The Lord of the Rings, a warrior and future king.
- Wonder Woman in DC Comics, a warrior fighting for peace.
- Mr. Hyde in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, representing the dark side of human nature.
- Gollum in The Lord of the Rings, embodying the corruption of desire.

- The Babadook in The Babadook, a manifestation of inner grief and fear.
- Voldemort in Harry Potter, the dark counterpart to Harry.
- Kylo Ren in Star Wars, torn between light and dark.
- Rapunzel in the classic fairy tale, trapped in a tower.
- Princess Peach in Super Mario, frequently needing rescue.
- Snow White in Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, poisoned and awaiting help.
- Megara in Hercules, saved from danger multiple times.
- Fiona in Shrek, initially in need of rescue but later revealed as strong.
- Ron and Hermione in Harry Potter, loyal friends and companions to Harry.
- Samwise Gamgee in The Lord of the Rings, always standing by Frodo's side.
- Chewbacca in Star Wars, Han Solo's loyal companion.
- Dr. Watson in Sherlock Holmes, aiding and supporting Holmes in every case.
- Timon and Pumbaa in The Lion King, friends who bring humor and help.
- Belle in Beauty and the Beast, a young and innocent girl who transforms the Beast.
- Aurora in Sleeping Beauty, an innocent princess cursed to eternal sleep.
- Ophelia in Hamlet, embodying innocence and tragedy.
- Dorothy in The Wizard of Oz, an innocent girl on a journey to find her way home.
- Cinderella in Cinderella, a gentle and kind-hearted maiden who finds happiness.