Dear Lucas,

Hello! How are you doing? I've been super excited to write to you since our last school project. Isn't it cool how our model volcano erupted? It was awesome to see it spew baking soda lava everywhere!

Over the weekend, I went on a hiking trip with my family. We explored the Green Mountain trails. It was a bit tough, but the view from the top was worth every step. We could see the whole town and the river shining under the sun. I took some photos and even collected some cool rocks. I'll bring them to school to show you.

I heard you joined the chess club. How's that going? I remember you said you wanted to learn new strategies. I think you're going to be a great player because you're always so good at puzzles.

I'm getting really excited about our upcoming book fair at school. I can't wait to find new adventure stories to read. Maybe we can pick out books together and then swap them when we're done reading? It would be like our own little book club!

Write back soon! I love getting your letters and hearing about all the fun things you do. Let's plan to meet at the library corner during recess tomorrow. We can share more about our weekend adventures!

Take care and keep having fun,

Emily
